THE genuine Hygeian Vegetable Medicine of the British College of Health in LONDON, in packets of $1, $2 and $3 each.

Also, The Vegetable Aromatic Powders, 25 cts. per Box. We inform the sick that we have just received

FROM LONDON,

through the hands of George Taylor

United States Agent,

For the British College of Health, a few hundred boxes of this justly celebrated Medicine, made by Jas. Morrison, the Hygeian. This medicine has by its own intrinsic merit gained a world renowned reputation, it is understood, although it has been opposed to every thing which the Faculty could bring in bear against it. It has some 400 visitors over Boston in its most recent forms, and over the faculty who oppose it use by CURING THOUSANDS.

The sale continues greatly to increase, and the sales facture exceeds by three times what it was most gratifying.

We beg leave to present to the public of Vermont and vicinity the Care of Lady Sophia Gray,

who, from her high standing in society, very influential to us all, who may think that it is the better class mostly who use this medicine.

This medicine is used now by thousands of the most respectable and best educated. And there are thousands who would find their health restored, and their purses better filled, if they would take this best of medicines instead of the universal and poisonous Compounds which they now so freely take, with a far different effect.

From Lady Sophia Gray to Morrison's Co. Gentlemen.—I feel that the next return I can make for the wonderful benefit I have received, is to give you my most excellent medicine; to publish my own and my maid's cases, hoping that from such authority it may give the means of others benefiting themselves by them, without a fear of being passes or injured in any way by it, as from fourteen months use of it, I am convinced of its perfect safety, and also that it never fails in any case if justice is done to it. My maid was declared perfectly incurable, and her cure was perceived in five months, and it was one of the very worst quality throats, of thirty years standing; and she has not had any return of it since it healed, and enjoys perfect health, which she never did before, and is free from colds.

My case is a complication of disorders. The liver is of the oldest date, was affected dangerously in 1790, in my twelfth year, and before it had started and typhus fever, and was always delicate. In 1800 my spine was injured by a very bad overturn in an open carriage, but not discovered until 1831; and during that time I never knew what real health was, and suffered most severely in many ways. It first brought violent spasms in the left hip which no medical skill could even relieve for fourteen years; during which time I had a termination of blood to the head for two years, and was much weakened by constant application of vetches. In 1818 my liver was very badly affected, and for a whole year I had less sleep than three hours without end and twice died in them. This complaint cured the spine; but I had severe returns of the liver complaint for many years, and the same was a strong remedy. I had also an inflammatory, slight rheumatic and bilious fever, and the last fit on my nerves, and I thought it should have lost my senses.

In 1836, rheumatic gout came on, and I had been confined and a cripple from it for twelve months, when I took your medicine I was rarely free from it. In 1838, my spine was discovered to be broken, and I had it discovered even ten years sooner. I am convinced I should have been restored to health. The seemed to conquer the other complaints; but my strength was nearly gone, and I could not bear such frequent blisters and leeches, and from great weakness, and the too active mind and body; it brought on continual attacks of the spine, liver and gout, and I was reduced to a state of nervous debility before I began taking this medicine for months I did not dare to see any one except my husband and servant, as the least exertion seemed to threaten me with loss of sense; and the palpitation of the heart, (from which I had suffered for years) became almost past bearing. Sound and refreshing sleep I had not known for years; but if free from pain, felt rewarded for the want of sleep. Several other complaints not named, were brought on by the spine and weakness.

For the last fourteen months I have never been confined for a day to the house. All my complaints have increased gradually; from being a mass of inflammation, do not know what thirst is; and after having been deaf for nine years, and deprived of every thing I had, I can now eat or drink whatever I fancy, and everything agrees with me; I sleep sound and well, and have as much strength as I must ever dare to expect, sufficient for the enjoyment of life; and I have been taken a grain or drop of any other medicine, or had blister or leeches. No one has received greater care or attention than I have done, from some of the best medical men in the kingdom; and most grateful I feel for it, and am convinced that, as far as he is fitted, nothing was left undone. I cannot end this without mentioning the name and distinguished merit of our family surgeon, who, when I told him of my case, took this medicine, naturally expressing no account of my delicate and precarious state; when he found it did me good, caused my going with it, and said he should rejoice in any thing that helped my life. I know many that have been benefited by it since I took it, but am not at liberty to mention names. I remain, Gentleman, your sincerely obliged,

SOPHIA GRAY.
